

dg28 - the newsletter

Edition No: 001 | 9th January 2009

Welcome to the very first newsletter for my dg28 pre-blog. I will send out one of these newsletters as often as I can giving you "early adopters" a bit of notice when I publish new articles on the pre-blog. I have no real idea how often that's going to be - it will probably depend on how much paying work I get. The pre-blog and the newsletter will have some very subtle advertising to help cover costs but apart from that you will not be subjected to any commercials.

As I sit here writing this, the first edition is going out to only 28 people. Please feel free to pass it on if you want to - or you could keep it to yourself! Either way, I'd really appreciate your feedback.

Without further ado, here is the first installment.

From time to time I deliver seminars to fellow photographers and I give lectures to students, PR people and just about anyone who will listen. If I get long enough, there is a central theme to what I try to say. It really amounts to defining the difference between a photographer and somebody with a camera. It's about how we see the world and how we show others that world.

112 year old Mr Henry Allingham - one of the last surviving servicemen from World War One.

To read the rest go here...

The Blog | About Me | My Portfolio | Contact Me |

This newsletter is ©Neil Turner 2009. All content is protected by copyright laws in the European Union and in the United States of America. For further details, contact the site owner . For details of policies including diversity and privacy please contact us.